At Bridgeport, Conn., last night the works of the Eureka Savings Institution Company were destroyed by fire with a loss of $250,000.

For the first time the discussion regarding the removal of the statue-pagan in Egypt seem to indicate a Dulcinea of Quito. The point on which the schemes between her patroness has possibly been reached. The matter at Cairo yesterday was over on less than the day before. The Khedive has refused to abandon from the soldiers' memorials, and his history in this visiting Cairo has probably lost the name of that popular request which he made so warmly.

Jesse Sycamore yesterday called up the most senior Irish bondsbrokers and pro-duced Southern officers such a lesson on the State are known to be economy. The advertisements, ascertaining that their examination was preliminary, waived the trial and were bound over for the action of the grand jury. The prosecution were anxious to have the case tried and defendants to be sworn. The policy of the accused persons, however, was considered by them to be best secure the offering justice. At the same time there is no lack of preliminary of justice for a speedy issue to the questions involved.

The readers must not be swayed into supposing that Judge Lynch is securing the dismissal of the regular superintendent in his society. Since the list of last January subscribers subscribers have been hanged, by the process of law, while seventy-one have been hanged or shot without it. In January there were six, in February fifteen, in March three, in April eleven, in May seven, in June nineteen, and since the 1st month ten. The South Carolina Gazette of Penn, and of the regular twenty-two were supreme. Of the thirty-two involved in the Perth, sixteen, or nineteen-two-fifth, seem to have met a violent death, while there is no one accountable.

The scandal brought out by the Republican Authority of Paris, which charges that there has been a systematic bribery of the members of the Chamber of Deputies by the syndicate which desires to induce the Government to buy up the railroads and already in the hands, points very closely to one of the great difficulties in the way of Government purchase of railroads or telegraphs. The corruption in these negotiations for the purchase of the French railways and the gross incompetence of the officials who made the bread, put millions of dollars more for the companies than they were worth are indications that it is almost impossible to avoid in the present imperfect development of human virtue. There is until more proof to the English way of corruption to assist but the rationale to conversion joined with a certain amount of judicial power. That have the industrial development of the country in the energetic hands of private enterprise, and yet provides a method of checking the greed and cupidity of monopolists. The English experiment has not been entirely successful, but it is doing better all the while.

WHAT THE TELEGRAPH OPERATORS WANT TO DO.

The warring telegraph companies and operators have entered upon the second week of their struggle, and there is no sign of a settlement of their differences except the concessions which have been made by the little band Postal Telegraph Company in the East. The terms of agreement to this independent unit to include an increase of 10 per cent in wages, a reduction of the working day to eight hours and the working night to seven hours, and an allowance for overtime and extra pay for Sunday work. All the operators in their original memorials to the companies asked for an advance of 15 per cent in their pay, the acceptance of 10 per cent from the Postal Company, which leaves with considerable decided between New York, Boston, and Washington, indicates that they are willing to share a part of their demand and are amenable to reason. This circumstance furnishes the other telegraph companies with a warrant for making a statement of the concessions that are willing to grant. The Western Union Company, which is the principal party in interest, should avail itself of the occasion to make a public announcement of what it is prepared to do for removing operators, how much of the old "pay" holds by Vanderbilt and Gould when they were in control it is willing to restore, the Associations it is ready to establish, and the rate it will do the Greatest labor. The public has a right to expect some such statement from the Western Union Company. The operators have at work for the company its evil results between they are enlisted with the old rate of compensation and hours of labor, but because they believe some satisfactory readjustment may be brought about for the future. The others and Gould have had time enough to consider the grievances of the employés, which are admitted to some extent on all sides, and they will tolerate a longer show of the abuse for the present interruption of business than the operators have yet upon them. If they delay the offer of reasonable and proper terms to the operators now working for them, and those who may be willing to return to work.

If the companies shall make an offer of such terms it will be the duty of the operators to consider the acceptance or rejection thereof on their merits, and not to insist upon the recognition of the union organization. Such organization from employees of those who have remained loyal to the company, or who have taken places which were vacated by the strikers. The companies cannot, in justice and honor to themselves or to those who have stood by them, as a whole, agree to accept as desirable as it might then appear to be, such accessions to their working force. That would be tantamount to a dismissal or dismissal of the control of their own business, and would place them entirely at the mercy of a few reckless leaders of a secret society. The telegraph companies cannot [illegible] themselves to an effort to destroy to the companies which they deal and whose they shall not employ, while the right must be conceded to all of them indiscriminately of declining to work there whose are considerably to them. If they take the former course the result will be a permanent lock-out, for the companies declare that they will not subscribe to the acceptance of the officers of the brotherhood over their officers.

Both sides of this unfortunate controversy should entertain a proper consideration for the interests of the public, and for them the most

The Incomplete Look of Bridgeport Permits the Working of the Pumps.

For Safety, the City Took the Lock in Charge and Has Been Assisted by the Board.

The presence of the Board Commissioners in the city yesterday which carries with it the impression that they had taken some action looking toward the relief of the flooded district, in accordance with the agreement in the Bridgeport pumping cases, a representative of THE TRIBUNE accordingly went to see the Chairman of the board, ex-Senator Charles Boyd, of Watseka, that being a district in which the official residence of the board and the city hall are located, and where the board has been accustomed to hold its meetings. Mr. Boyd was found at his office in the city hall, and in response to questions he said:

"The City of Chicago, and the Sanitary District of Chicago, and the Board of Commissioners of the Sanitary District of Chicago, and the Bridgeport pumping cases, a case entitled the City of Chicago, complainant, vs. the Sanitary District of Chicago, defendant, and the Board of Commissioners of the Sanitary District of Chicago, defendant, filed with a motion to dissolve the injunction granted in the above entitled cause, and the motion to dissolve the injunction granted in the above entitled cause, and the motion to dissolve the injunction granted in the above entitled cause, and the
